Goodyear takes home prestigious Auto Express Tire Test Title

The Goodyear Vector 4Seasons Gen-2 shows its impressive all-round performance in the latest all-season test carried out by leading English magazine 'Auto Express'.¹

On November 9th, English magazine 'Auto Express' released the results of their second all-season tire test. In this prestigious test, Goodyear has taken the crown once again with the Vector 4Seasons Gen-2 tire.

The tire was put up against tough competition from Michelin with their CrossClimate and Nokian with their Weatherproof tire amongst others. Auto Express tested the tires in a number of disciplines including wet, dry and snowy conditions, rolling resistance and cabin noise, the Goodyear tire performed best overall.

The tire performed exceptionally well in the following disciplines: wet braking (1st), wet handling (1st), snow handling (1st) and cabin noise (1st) as well as snow braking (2nd), straight aqua (2nd) and rolling resistance (2nd). Goodyear shone in the wet disciplines stopping 2 meters ahead of the 2nd place Nokian tire in the wet braking test.²

Kim Adams, who tested the tires for Auto Express reported "It takes a balanced performance across all our assessments to crown a winner, and that's what Goodyear has delivered here. There's no doubt this product is from the winter tire school of all-season design, but it does enough in the wet and dry tests to take the overall victory."
